FIRELESS COOKER GROWS POPULAR

Many Communities Interested in This Time and Labor Saving Device as Demonstrated by the Home Bureau.

During the last week fireless cooker demonstrations have been conducted by the Home Bureau at West Hurley, Milton, Alligerville and Asbury and during the next few weeks many more communities will have had this demonstration.

As the housekeeper's tasks increase due to difficulties in securing help she too, becomes more interested in the various labor saving devices that will make her work easier and save time. The fireless cooker is one of the most valuable labor saving devices we have today and many women throughout the county are realizing this fact.

At the fireless cooker meetings held by the Home Bureau, the use of this device has been demonstrated by Mrs. Stuart, the Home Bureau manager, by the cooking of various foods in the fireless cooker, the talk explaining in some detail just how to use them, and by the leaflets and bulletins that are distributed at each of these meetings. Beside the use of the fireless cooker the making of a home made cooler is also demonstrated and within a short time it is expected that many women in the communities above mentioned will have made fireless cookers and be using them every day. At Asbury two of the Home Bureau members had almost completed their fireless cookers before the close of the meeting.

At West Hurley this demonstration was held at the home of Mrs. John Saxe, the local chairman of the Home Bureau. At Milton the meeting took place in the Community House with Mrs. Edward Young presiding in the absence of Mrs. Bell, the local chairman. At Alligerville the demonstration was held at the home of Mrs. W. H. Neff, one of the members, and Mrs. Elmer Smith, the local chairman, presided. At Asbury the Grange Hall was the meeting place and Mrs. W. G. Trumbour, chairman, presided. The next fireless cooker demonstrations are scheduled for West Shokan, Monticello, Lackawack, Stone Ridge, Accord and Kephonkson. The dates and places for these meetings will be published later.

Anyone wishing information about the making and use of a fireless cooker—who cannot attend any of these meetings—is invited and urged to come to the Home Bureau office, 43 Crown street, Kingston, where they may get the government bulletins and the Home Bureau leaflets on the subject. Unless the fireless cookers are out for a demonstration you may see them and have questions answered.

MRS. SMITH HAD NARROW ESCAPE

Flatbush Woman Driving Chevrolet Says Gates at Flatbush Avenue Crossing Were Lowered on Her Too Suddenly—Claims She Was Going 15 Miles per Hour.

A woman giving the name of Mrs. Sam Smith of South Flatbush telephoned The Freeman this morning and related her experience in a near accident on the Flatbush avenue crossing Monday afternoon.

Mrs. Smith stated that she was driving a Chevrolet car, going at the rate of 15 miles an hour, and that when within twenty feet of the West Shore railroad crossing the gates were lowered to permit a switch engine to pass.

Mrs. Smith claims that she threw on the foot brake, and pulled the emergency brake on her car, but the gates just grazed the wind shield and had it not been for a man sitting in the seat with her, who reached out and held the gates, the glass in the wind shield would have been broken.

Mrs. Smith, who by her voice seemed very indignant, alleged that after she had crossed the tracks, the gate tender or somebody there told her she ought not to drive so fast when near a crossing. She asks if 15 miles per hour is not permitted in the city.

With Mrs. Smith in the car were a woman, a man and two children. None were injured.

DEMPSEY ON GEORGES' TRAIL

(By Jack Velock)
By Telegraph to The Freeman:
New York, June 23.—Jack Dempsey is speeding eastward today with his manager, Jack Kearns, to meet Georges Carpentier and Francois Descamps before they sail away to Europe.
Dempsey and Kearns will arrive here not later than July 7th. Carpentier is scheduled to sail for France July 10th. Dempsey wants action and if Georges feels the same way about it there will be plenty of time for the two champions to get together.
Dempsey's stand was outlined to the International News Service today in the following telegram from Kearns at Denver:
"Failing to hear from Georges Carpentier with regard to the signing of articles, Jack Dempsey and myself are hurrying eastward to meet the Frenchman and his manager before they sail for Europe. We are prepared to sign articles and post a forfeit and we will insist that Carpentier sign up before sailing."
"If Carpentier came to America to fight Dempsey he should sign up at once. We are ready to fight at any time. My intention is to meet Descamps in New York, have a personal interview and arrange for the big bout."
"Dempsey is going to be a fighting champion from now on. The champion is now close to fighting him and won't be idle much longer."

Girls! Butter Milk Creates Beauty Over night

The first application of Howard's Butter Milk Cream will astonish you. It creates beauty almost like magic, but the most wonderful thing about it is the fact that while it turns the sunken and most hideous complexion to radiant beauty and makes the eyes clear and every hair, yet there is not the slightest sign of its use after application. It actually vanishes from sight and the treated atmosphere will not grow or least children or grandmothers of the skin. It is absolutely harmless and will either produce or stimulate the growth of hair. Within twenty-four hours a most beautiful complexion called Howard's Butter Milk Cream will work a marvelous transformation. Manufactured at Buffalo, N. Y. by Howard Bros. Chemical Company.

DRAFT EVADER GIVES ADDRESS

Highland, June 23.—Earl Humphreys, "conscientious objector," released from Fort Leavenworth, and Roger Baldwin, director of the American Civil Liberties Union, spoke to the June conference of the Inter-collegiate Socialist Society, in session here Sunday night, on the topic, "Can the Forces of Democracy Express Themselves?" Mr. Baldwin's most striking remark was: "The only places in the United States today with free press and free assembly are where the workers or the farmers are strongly enough organized to take and hold these rights. For instance, North Dakota and Wisconsin alone among western states have none of the criminal syndicalism or sedition laws under which free opinion is gagged. Even in Montana, no convictions can be obtained under the criminal syndicalism law because of the clean cut issue between the farmers and workers on the one side, and the copper companies on the other. The fiction that constitutional American rights can be maintained through law has been pretty well exploded. Everywhere the realization is growing that legal rights are hollow shams without the political and economic power to enforce them. The road to industrial freedom is the way to all freedom."

Oath No Light Matter in Siam.
The following Siamese oath reported by "The Office Dog," indicates that in Siam perjury is no light matter: "May the blood drop from my body; may my head break in two; may the crocodiles devour me; may I be compelled to carry water in wicker baskets to quench the flames of hell; may I suffer the most horrible tortures until my years are as many as the grains of sand by the sea, if I violate this my solemn oath."—World Outlook.

ONLY EXHIBIT OF ITS KIND

Jewish Society Building Model Well, Cesspool, Incinerator, Etc., At Ellenville As Part of Its Campaign Which Has Been Going On Two Years To Bring Health and Sanitation To Ulster County Farms.

An exhibit of great educational value is being built in Ellenville. It is the only one of its kind in New York state, and possibly the only one of its kind in the United States. It is the Sanitation Exhibit now under construction on the property of the Jewish Agricultural and Industrial Aid Society, the old Lemuel DuBois property.

This community is pretty well acquainted with the good work which the Jewish Agricultural Society is doing. A very important phase of the society's work is the sanitation campaign which has been carried on in Ulster and Sullivan counties during the past two years. Dr. Edward Goodwin, the sanitary supervisor of the society, is in charge of this work, and he has been conducting a vigorous and active sanitation campaign among the Jewish farmers, boarding and rooming house owners, a campaign which is resulting in higher standards of cleanliness and sanitation upon the farms. His efforts have been directed toward the obtaining of permanent improvements in all the farm water supply, in better and cleaner methods of sewerage disposal, in better methods of garbage disposal, and towards the elimination of the fly evil. This work has the hearty cooperation and aid of the New York State Board of Health, and all the local health boards in this district.

Early this spring after conference with the state health department and with the State Engineering Department, the Agricultural Society decided to erect a Sanitation Exhibit. Robert Graham, the well known architect, drew up the plans for this exhibit which plans received the hearty endorsement of the State Sanitary Engineer, Theodore Horton. Mr. Graham in association with the Sanitary Supervisor, Dr. Goodwin, took charge of building operations. The construction work was placed in the hands of Seymour Brothers, those young and energetic contractors and builders. Work was begun about two weeks ago and is now nearing completion.

There is being built on the society's property, actual working structures of many very needed sanitary farm appliances. There is an excellently constructed well, a well scientifically correct in all details, and one which will guarantee a pure and safe water supply. There is a remarkable septic tank. This appliance if properly installed will materially help to solve the sewage disposal problem on the farm. There is a double cess pool, showing the proper and exact details of construction, one which is scientifically correct, and which if installed should surely help to solve that vexed question of sewage disposal. Then there will be a structure showing how a spring enclosure should be built, a structure which will insure the purity of spring water; also an incinerator which will demonstrate a simple and clean method for garbage destruction. Also a clean sanitary dry toilet which will demonstrate a simple, clean and inexpensive method of sewage construction.

The entire exhibit will be completed within about ten days. When finished it will be a remarkable and unique piece of work. Up until the present time the methods of agricultural societies sanitation campaign have been educational, namely: Heart to heart talks with the farmers; demonstrations, stereopticon views, distribution of pamphlets, booklets, posters in English and Yiddish, lectures and public health talks to the proprietors and their guests. These methods the society intends to continue, and in addition it now expects to bring farmers, rooming house owners and boarding house keepers to this sanitation exhibit, and to show them just how very much needed things should be built and operated. The people who come to see the exhibit will have before them the actual well or septic tank or cesspool or spring enclosure or garbage incinerator. They will see all of the details of proper construction. They will not only see of these important details, but they will also be shown the just as important details of proper operation. This educational method, that is, the actual visualization of the things which are so needed, will enable the farmers and owners to go back to their own farms and build upon their own properties wells, cesspools, incinerators, etc., and it will enable them to build these appliances in a proper and scientific manner.

The Society hopes to make this Sanitation Exhibit a real Teaching and Demonstrating Center. It should become a place where the farmers can come and get much needed advice and instruction; a place that in every sense of the word should become a real Health Center. Furthermore, if this exhibit should turn out to be a real success, and as in all likelihood it will be, it should be the beginning of the construction of similar establishments in other communities. This Sanitation Exhibit should help materially towards the solution of the many vexed problems of rural sanitation.

The Jewish Agricultural Society has now established a branch office in Ellenville. Three important demonstrations are functioning through this Ellenville branch office. David F. Allen, manager of the branch office, is head of the business and financial department, and is carrying on very able and efficient work among the Jewish farmers. He is doing everything to aid the farmers in a material way. Problems of farmers' farm loans and everything associated with business of farming is handled by Mr. Allen.

Mr. Nathan, an expert on all things which pertain to agriculture, and formerly head of a teaching department at one of the largest Western Agricultural Colleges is carrying on a campaign for the better farming methods. His work is an association with that of the State College of Agriculture and with the Ulster and Sullivan County Farm Bureau. Results of his active campaign are seen in improved farming all over in this district. His activity is assisting the Jewish farmers to come up to the front in scientific farming.

sanitation work and has been giving his efforts towards the obtaining of higher standards of farm sanitation, and higher standards of clean, healthful living. He tells us that he hopes that before long Ulster and Sullivan will become the model counties in good sanitation and good health.

HOWARD FIGG

Howard Figg, special assistant to the United States attorney general, has refused to endorse the skimp skirts suggested by manufacturers as a conservative measure, according to a report from Washington. Mr. Figg decided against the suggestion after three living models dressed in knee-length dresses had been presented for his inspection. The styles in women's clothes this fall will be changed as little as possible in order to permit women to get fall wear out of their last year's clothes. This was decided by the National Garment Retailers' Association upon the suggestion of Mr. Figg. This photograph of Mr. Figg was made in Washington.

Dangerous Alarm Clock

To prevent oversleeping, and thus risking the loss of their employment, the mail carriers of Newcomb resort to a unique and perilous scheme. They tie a string to one foot, and as they know how long a card or two will burn, they regulate the length of the string by the time they have to sleep. They light the string, which burns slowly, and when the fire comes to their feet, they are painfully reminded that it is time to arise.

DOGS ATTACK MORTON SHEEP

Rhinebeck, June 29.—While the fine flock of sheep at Ellerslie was peacefully grazing, two dogs entered the fold and attacked them. There were a hundred sheep in the flock and before help arrived to drive the dogs off, eighteen of the finest in the flock had been so badly bitten and torn that a number were shot to be put out of their misery. Town Assessors Charles Ferris and George Lang were notified and they went at once to the scene of the attack in order to adjudge the damages done. One of the dogs was recognized as belonging to a resident of Rhinebeck, but the second one seemed to be a strange dog in the locality. The Ellerslie flock was attacked last year at about this same time and a number of valuable sheep were killed, but the owner of the dog was never identified.

Leather From Rat Skin

That the skin of the rat can be used for leather has been proved, even though an experiment with some thousands of skins imported from France proved in the nineteenth century that the manufacture was not commercially worth while. A pair of shoes made from the skin of the rat proved as soft as the best kid, but it took six days to make the one pair, only the skin being used, enough for one shoe.

VACATION DOES HARDING GOOD

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, June 28.—Senator Harding, the Republican nominee, was at his desk in the senate office building early this morning.

His cheery smile and vigor attested the beneficial results of his two days vacation and out-door exercise at the country home of Senator Frelinghuysen, at Raritan, N. J.

The senator was more completely rested, he said, than he has been since he began his pre-convention tour in search of delegates for the nominating convention. No work was done by the senator during his vacation. He held virtually no conferences, did not talk about the campaign with his senator friends, did not even think about his speech of acceptance, he says.

Sensor Harding has no set conferences for today, but callers are expected and he will see as many as he can.

Governor Coolidge is coming tomorrow for a conference with Senator Harding on the acceptance speeches and campaign plans.

Sensor Harding will allow himself no more vacations until after he has become settled at his home in Marion, Ohio, which he expects to reach Sunday.

There will be several conferences here during the week and others have been set for Marion.

LATITINGTOWN.

Oil Used in Days of Pliny.

Petroleum has been known from ancient times. It was put to practical use as a fuel around the Caspian sea much earlier than elsewhere. Under the name of "Sicilian oil," it was burned in lamps in Rome in the days of Pliny. It entered into use in the arts in China centuries ago, and was discovered by the early settlers in America.

Alice Fox Pitts, New Bedford, Mass.

WILKIE COLLINS, the son of a bookseller and a printer, was born in London, January 8, 1824.

He died September 23, 1889. After some private education at home he spent three years in Italy with his father. On his return he became a clerk with a firm of solicitors in London, but he was not to his taste; he studied law at the Inner Temple, and in 1851 he was called to the bar.

In 1851, but he was still drifting; he was not attracted to the law, though he found his studies of great use to him in later days.

The death of the elder Collins in 1847 put the son partly in the way of making himself, for he published his father's life in two volumes the next year. He had been turning over his experiences of three years' life in Italy, and in 1850 appeared his first novel, "Arcturion, or the Fall of Rome." "Basil" was published in 1852, and "Hide and Seek" in 1854. He had not attracted the attention of the public as yet. The great event of his life, however, came in 1851, when he made the acquaintance of Charles Dickens.

IT WAS a close and sultry night early in August. And I, Walter Hartwright, master of drawing, aged twenty-eight, was walking from Hampstead to London. In one moment every drop of blood in my body was brought to a stop by the touch of a hand laid gently on my shoulder. There, in the middle of the high road, stood a woman dressed from head to foot in white garments. She asked me the way to London. I told her; and we parted.

Two minutes later a carriage passed me and a few yards beyond stopped near a policeman. A man put his head from the window and asked: "Have you seen a woman pass this way—a woman in white? She has escaped from my asylum." At a shake of the policeman's head, the carriage drove rapidly on.

The next day I was at Limeridge house, Cumberland, in the service of Frederick Fairlie, Esq. I was there to instruct his two young nieces in the art of painting. I found Marian Halcombe to be dark and ugly, but intelligent. Laura Fairlie, her half-sister, was light, pretty and dependent. They were devoted to each other, and before my engagement was up, I admired the one and loved the other.

My feelings were the cause of my leaving Limeridge house. Marian Halcombe brought to me a realization of my own heart. "You must leave," she said, "not because you are only a teacher of drawing, but because Laura Fairlie is engaged to be married."

A few days before I left Cumberland, while walking alone in the evening, I was confronted by the same face which had first looked into mine on the London high road by night. But I was startled less by its sudden reappearance than by my immediate recognition of an ominous likeness between this fugitive from the asylum and my fair pupil at Limeridge house. Still greater was my consternation when the woman admitted having come to the neighborhood for the sole purpose of thwarting the proposed marriage of Laura Fairlie.

I left Limeridge house, and soon after embarked on an expedition to Central America. The same year Laura Fairlie became the bride of Sir Percival Glyde, Bart., and with her sister went to live at Blackwater park, her husband's country estate. Count Fosco, an audacious and domineering Italian, and his wife were guests of the household. But all was not so harmonious as an English country party should be. Lady Glyde and her sister, as inseparable and confiding as ever, felt a perceptible coolness rising between them and the two gentlemen. Countess turned to suspicion and soon to fear.

Then it was that Lady Glyde met the Woman in White. The mysterious person stole noiselessly up to her in the twilight one evening and whispered: "If you know your husband's secret, he would be afraid of you. He would not dare use you as he has used me. I ought to have saved you before it was too late." But before the secret was told there were footsteps in the distance and the woman moved stealthily away.

Sir Percival learned of the brief interview, and was afraid of his wife. He demanded, begged, threatened her to tell him all she knew. What had become a bottle of wine between the two sisters and the two men became a struggle of strategy, and the woman lost the fight. Lady Glyde was "decoyed" into leaving Blackwater park for Count Fosco's London house. Less than two weeks later a tombstone in Cumberland bore this inscription: "Inured to the memory of Laura, Lady Glyde."

On my return from Central America the same year, I heard of the death, and immediately visited the grave. As I approached it, two women came towards me. One was Marian Halcombe, the other was called, but when she asked this covering from her face, there looking at me, was Laura, Lady Glyde. She was pale, nervous and depressed—more perfect than ever in

The Simplicity of a

is Due to Special Steels

A Maxwell is a simple car. Its engine, axles, clutch, transmission and gears are the utmost in simplicity, which is the goal of scientific engineering.

Special steels have made this possible. They are steels made to Maxwell's own formulae, the result of thousands of tests and years of analysis.

These steels give a Maxwell the remarkable combination of extra strength and lightness in weight.

In this way complicated construction has been avoided. Simple design has naturally followed and to this simplicity rare strength has been added by the use of these special steels.

Strains, twists, thrusts, shocks and blows are protected against in many other cars by reinforcements, extra weight in metals used, and a design that obviously is anything but simple.

In a Maxwell this simplicity has made the car easier to build, and it therefore is better built, easier to drive, and easier to care for.

That this should win friends for Maxwell is almost too obvious to call attention to.

Nearly 400,000 persons now drive a Maxwell, which is a very definite endorsement.

our resemblance to the Woman in White.

Marian Halcombe told me what she knew. She had found her sister in an asylum, and in the grave at our feet was her mysterious double. Sir Percival's boldness and Count Fosco's cleverness had succeeded in exchanging the destinies of the two women. The circumstance had settled these two gentlemen some 30,000 pounds, derived from the estate of Lady Glyde.

The fortune was gone beyond recall, but Lady Glyde's true identity might yet be established in the face of such evidence as her death certificate and tombstone, and the incredulity of her friends and relatives. This I determined to do. Cast upon the world alone, the sisters readily agreed to allow me to take up their fight, and I determined that Laura should one day re-enter her father's estate recognized by all.

It soon was apparent that Sir Percival and Count Fosco were the persons I must fight. I worked secretly, but directly, for I had no funds with which to carry on a fight through the courts. The secret with which the Woman in White had threatened Sir Percival seemed to me to be the key to the whole situation. Through a series of inquiries, working always under the watch of spies, I found it opportune to look up the marriage registration of Sir Percival's parents. I found it in a little country church—and it was forced. I was no scholar in possession of the knowledge of his flighty nature, but Sir Percival, in further desperation to destroy the evidence, entered the little church by night, set fire to the structure, and through the agency of his own stupidity and an old-fashioned wooden lock, trapped himself into an awful death.

Laura was free of her husband, but she remained an outcast—a woman dead to her friends and relatives. I was still determined this should not be. My only hope of success lay in Count Fosco, who alone had the evidence which could establish her legal position. But to acknowledge Lady Glyde's identity would be to admit his guilt of one of the greatest of crimes. My task looked difficult, but an agency came to my aid.

Count Fosco was a traitor to one of the world-wide Mafia secret societies. The knowledge came to me by chance, but it saved me in good stead. I went to his house one night and hurried my attack for the evidence of Laura's existence. Count Fosco, in a long expostulation, gave the details of his own and Sir Percival's coming. Then he last shred of mystery surrounding the Woman in White. I pieced together her story from her old friends and relatives. Fate had made her the illegitimate half-sister of her counterpart and the chance possessor of Sir Percival's secret.

My labors ended, Marian Halcombe and her sister, who was now my wife, returned to the happy companionship of those days at Limeridge house before Sir Percival's cunning had usurped the consummation of our love.

On the death of Laura's uncle some months later, her son and mine became the heir of the estate and fortune of the house of Limeridge.

UNCLE SAM KNOWS HIS BOYS

System of Finger Print Identification Makes Errors in the Navy Impossible.

"King Solomon," said the navy recruiting officer, "was the original identification expert. Remember how, when two women claimed the same child, he threatened to give each of them half the child to carry away? And how the one who didn't wish the child harmed was adjudged the real mother? Well, the navy recruiting service hasn't King Solomon on its staff, but it handles similar problems every day in the week. Twice recently applied for enlistment. Their mother had never been really sure which was Tom and which Harry, and informed the recruiting officer that she never had known whether she were speaking the right one. Five minutes afterward she was assured that her boys would never get mixed again. How? Finger prints.

"Loss of memory (aphasia) and such rare causes of loss of identity are easily handled in the navy. Uncle Sam knows his boys not only by their middle names, but also by the little lines engraved on the tips of their fingers. It's an absolutely up-to-date safeguard for the boys in the service and their families. For the matter of that, the whole navy system of caring for its men has been perfected to the limit. Diet, exercise, medical and dental attention, all are arranged in accordance with the latest information on the subjects. It takes good men to man good ships."

BIRD'S FUN WITH SQUIRREL

Cheerful Little Nuthatch Gained Repute to Lose His Temper and Use Bad Language.

A red streak flashed down the limb on which the nuthatch was working. That was the squirrel. A fraction of a second ahead of the squirrel there was a wing of gray and white. That was the nuthatch. Samuel Sewall, Jr., writes in Yale Review. Before the squirrel could even recover his balance there was a cheerful rat-tat-tat behind. As the squirrel turned, the rapping sounded on the under side of the branch. His bushy red tail quivered, and, using some strong squirrel language, he drove back into his hole. He was hardly out of sight when the nuthatch was tapping again at his door. Once more the squirrel rushed out chattering and spitting. Once more the nuthatch was not there. Then he tried chasing the bird around the limb, but the nuthatch could turn in half the time and space, and moreover, did not have to be afraid of falling for a drop of 30 feet to frozen ground is no joke even for a red squirrel. The irritating thing about the nuthatch was that so much how hard the squirrel chased him he never stopped for a second tapping away at the branch, feeding even as he ran. Finally Mr. Squirrel went back to his hole and stayed there while the nuthatch tapped in triumph all around his hole, although unable chattering from within to express the squirrel's unvarnished opinion of that nuthatch.

End of Coal Trouble.

Campbell Station figures out that 4,000,000 horse power from sunlight goes to waste on every square mile.

Which means, writes "Ozurd" in the Philadelphia Press, that Old Sol sheds upon the surface of Pennsylvania the City equivalent of nearly 300,000,000 horse power.

Some day you will read in your morning paper that Prof. Long Head has found a way to catch that power that now runs loose. Then good-by coal strikes!

Antarctic will be an excellent for fuel as little shells are for money. Sun engines will replace gasoline in your auto, steamships will need no oil, the railroads no brown and the coal traders, the street railways no power house and your cellar will be rid of the dusty furnace.

What high finks the stock brokers can have when the promoters list on the exchanges 10,000,000 of new stock in Sunlight Overhead.
